Celebrating Major Milestones in the Journey Towards One Caring and Sharing Community

The Manila ASEAN Ministerial Meetings

One Caring and Sharing Community

ASEAN

July 29 to August 2, 2007

"For the past 40 years, ASEAN member countries have created our own shared history, in the same manner that we are keenly aware of our common destiny. It is this awareness that has led us to make a conscious decision to create a community, where there is unity in diversity, and which we envision to be one caring and sharing community."

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Opening Ceremony, ASEAN Ministerial Meeting
30 July 2007, Philippine International Convention Center

Building on the gains of the ASEAN Summit and Related Meetings which were chaired by President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo in Cebu last January, the Foreign Ministers of ASEAN and its partners gathered in Manila from July 29 to August 2, 2007 for several ministerial meetings involving Foreign Ministers, Special Envoys, senior and other officials from 26 countries and the European Union.

These meetings highlighted efforts to build a caring and sharing community in Southeast and East Asia. Foreign Affairs Secretary Alberto G. Romulo chaired most of the meetings.

The Manila meetings witnessed a historic first - the Call of the Foreign Ministers and Special Envoys of the Six Party Talks on the President which gave the talks on the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula a major boost.

Another meeting that was held on the sidelines was that of the SEANWFZ Commission, created under the Southeast Asia Nuclear Weapons Free Zone Treaty, where a 5-year Plan of Action and a call for the nuclear weapons states to sign the Protocol to the Treaty were made.

The Fifth Ministerial Meeting of the Southwest Pacific Dialogue (Australia, Indonesia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, the Philippines and Timor Leste) was also held at the margins of the Manila ASEAN Ministerial Meetings. The meeting underscored the continuing threat to regional stability and prosperity posed by transnational crime and terrorism. The Meeting welcomed the region's successes in fighting these scourges, citing in particular the Philippines's success in the Southern Philippines. The meeting agreed to continue cooperation on promoting interfaith dialogues.

expanding cooperation in the areas of women, poverty alleviation, disaster management and [illegible]. For the Post-Ministerial Conference, ASEAN met its dialogue partners (Australia, Canada, China, the European Union, India, Japan, the Republic of Korea, New Zealand, the Russian Federation and the United States of America) individually and as a group.

Secretary Romulo co-chaired the ASEAN-Russia [illegible] with Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov. The participants agreed to renew efforts in implementing the 2005-2015 ASEAN-Russia Comprehensive Program of Action to Promote Cooperation to further enhance the [illegible] relations.

During the ASEAN-US Dialogue, Secretary Romulo emphasized the importance of continuing US engagement in the region. This was a sentiment that was shared by many.

At the ASEAN Regional Forum, the Philippines led in reaffirming the importance of the ARF as the main multilateral political and security forum in the region

The 40th ASEAN Ministerial Meeting led to several milestones, including the final draft of the ASEAN Charter and the decision to include a human rights body in the Charter.

The cause of migrant workers also received a major boost with the adoption of two key documents: Statement on the Establishment of the ASEAN Committee on the Implementation of the ASEAN Declaration on the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Migrant Workers, and the Guidelines for the Provision of Emergency Assistance by ASEAN Missions in Third Countries to Nationals of ASEAN Member Countries in Crisis Situations.

Energy security was the focus of the Philippines in the meeting of the participating states to the East Asia Summit (ASEAN countries, Australia, China, India, Japan, New Zealand, Republic of Korea). It was agreed that they had gone far in pursuing the tasks given to them by their Leaders in Cebu. They agreed to continue working on the identified priority work streams, specifically: 1) energy efficiency and conservation; 2) biofuels for transportation and other purposes; and, 3) energy market integration.

At the ASEAN Plus Three (China, Japan, Republic of Korea), a decision was taken to continue intensifying economic and financial cooperation while at the same time [illegible] and in agreeing to its further strengthening. The ARF reiterated its support for ASEAN as its primary driving force and welcomed progress in developing a part for the ARF in preventive diplomacy.

It was agreed that the role of the ARF Chair would be enhanced and the Terms of Reference of Friends of the ARF Chair were adopted for this purpose.

Manila also served as a venue for the Foreign Ministers to hold Bilateral Meetings with their counterparts.

On his part, Secretary Romulo met with 11 of his counterparts and signed bilateral agreements with the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Japan and Russia.

WATER SUPPLY

Slaking Mega Manila's thirst

HAD THE DRY SPELL PERSISTED, THE VOLUME OF WATER SUPPLIED BY ANGAT DAM TO Metro Manila and nearby areas (Mega Manila), and to farms in Central Luzon would have been further reduced.

The water level in Angat had dropped to 172 meters, eight meters below the normal level, before storms "Chedeng" and "Dodong" induced the southwest monsoon (habagat) to dump rains on Mega Manila and the western sections of Luzon.

The rains raised the water level in Angat to 181.4 meters on Friday, prompting officials to scuttle plans to further cut water supply to the metropolis.

The cutback, scheduled for Aug. 18, would have led to water interruptions in elevated areas in the west zone of Mega Manila and to significant reductions in water for irrigation in Bulacan and Pampanga. Residents of Mega Manila can heave a sigh of relief. There's sufficient water and the dry spell is expected to wane in the western part of Luzon by the end of the month.

Where megalopolis gets its drinking water

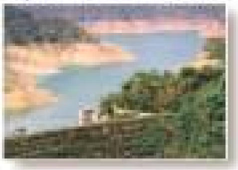

The main source of Metro Manila's water supply is the Angat reservoir and dam in San Lorenzo, Norzagaray, Bulacan. The water in Angat mostly comes from Sierra Madre, one of the last rainforest frontiers in Luzon.

Room to Breathe

Montecito delivers breathing space as only a boutique development can.

When Canlubang Sugar Estate president Jose Yulo, Jr. and his wife Regina left the congestion of the city to live full-time in the family's Laguna plantation, it wasn't long before they were prodded by close friends to open up their property to others who wanted to share in the "lightness of being" that emanated from the place. It took years of persuading, but Mr. Yulo eventually organized a team of experts to develop 350 very special lots designed in the same spirit as his own home. American landscape architect Tim Coppola was hired to create a master plan that ensured all of the houses in the property would benefit from the generous amounts of open space, and integrate the existing coconut plantation into the overall design.

The resulting layout done by Coppola left far more space open for common use than an ordinary property developer would normally allow. The project team, however, believed it was more important to preserve the quality of life that had originally enticed the Yulo family to relocate to the plantation. The 60-hectare portion of the Canlubang property where the 350 lots had been developed was baptized "Montecito" after views of small mountains in the area.

Today, Montecito is no longer as far from the city as it used to be–a newly opened road that connects Montecito to the Silangan Exit of the South Luzon Expressway makes it accessible from Makati in as little as 30-45 minutes even with moderate traffic–but its atmosphere is as reinvigorating as ever. To know more about Montecito, log on to www.montecito.com.ph. You can also schedule a site visit by calling (+63 2) 6700-5568, or sending an email to montecito@belfast.com.ph.

This lake fed by a spring is the first sight that greets residents upon entering the property. Tilapia is grown in the lake, which is also home to a few ducks. The lake irrigates the landscape and enhances the neighborhood's atmosphere of tranquility.

Property developers normally lay out lots to create as much saleable land as possible, but Montecito's planners left generous amounts of communal space between lots so houses are not directly adjacent to each other. Greenways (shown in photo) and grass courtyards serve as ventilation corridors between lots. They provide privacy as well as a shared space for interaction between neighbors.

Everyone can be a healer

The Filipino healing ritual, 'Kalipay Mu,' has slowly but steadily seen a resurgence, a millennial development

KALIPAY MU," A RESEARCH by Tony Bernardo reveals, "is a pre-colonial ceremony led by tribal shamans called babaylan who were mostly female. Keepers of ancient secrets and wisdom, babaylan brought people to higher states of consciousness. The spirit was awakened, encouraging the Divine energy to move through the body, consequently inducing spiritual ecstasy, healing, and the removal of mental, physical and emotional blockages. The arrival of the Spaniards virtually wiped out the babaylan and their practices and replaced them with the Roman Catholic religion."

home-schooled at all.

The sprawling Zen garden, with its playground, manicured lawn and melding rock formation, is equally grand in scale. Beyond the white sand playground is an elongated blue swimming pool, where Sarit, Pinky and their four sons Miguel, Joaquin, Luis and Bogo spend a good part of their weekends.

Rather than wall off the property with imposing concrete like what most of his neighbors did, Sarit went for low, unobtrusive metal railings that allow them an unimpeded view of the river and the neighborhood beyond.

"We can even get fresh vegetables at a [illegible] price from people who plant on idle land on both sides of the river," he says.

Art gallery

Apart from providing their kids with a verdant and safe place where they can spend their growing up years, the couple built a home that doubles as an art gallery for the extensive artworks they've acquired and continue to acquire from art dealers like Bong Tejones of Choice Expression (Drolo Consolidation Bldg., Jupiter Street, Makati).

This explains the prevalence of white walls on both the first and second floors, which showcase figurative and abstract paintings by such renowned Filipino artists as Amorsolo, Joya, Santos, Luz and Angel Cacnio.

"I was also into painting when I was in elementary and high school," Sarit shares. "I really appreciate a good artwork when I see one."

When Sarit got a bit older, he had to choose between fine arts and medicine. He has no regrets, he says, to regret his decision. Aside from finding his true calling, his choice led him to his future partner in life.

Pinky, a pediatrician, had to put her practice on hold for the meantime to run the house and look after the children. Of course, she gets by with a little help from their yaya.

At the rate they're acquiring artworks, it won't come as a surprise if the Casanovas soon run out of walls to feature their pricey acquisitions. They have barely enough room for more paintings, but Sarit is already thinking of adding a Malang and a Bane to his already burgeoning collection.

So as not to obscure his paintings on the second floor, he wisely chose sheets of clear tempered glass as guardrails along the staircase and upstairs hall. The structural staircase, which is sandwiched between an indoor pond (beside a bed of off-white beach sand) below and a sky-lit roof above, is an artwork in itself. Each of the stairs' wooden steps, by the way, is four inches thick.

Like most of the furniture pieces, designed by Agi Paghatpanan, the stairs are made of thick slabs of recycled Philippine hardwood. Sarit tapped Paghatpanan's services to do some conversation pieces made from such rare and hardy materials as narra, molave, kamagong, ipil, yakal and balunsay.

"I asked Agi to incorporate my collection of hardwood, which I sourced from various old houses, into his furniture pieces," says
